MARKET COMMENTARY

Global stocks and bonds declined sharply in March due to escalating Middle East hostilities. The conflict involved the U.S., Israel, and Iran, with Iran's counter-attacks spreading across the region, disrupting regional stability. Oil prices surged to nearly $104 per barrel, significantly above January levels, driven by fears of supply disruptions. Natural gas prices also rose, raising concerns about energy shortages. The closure of the Strait of Hormuz, a crucial route for global energy supplies, heightened risks and uncertainty across markets. These developments increased inflation pressures, especially in Europe, Asia, and emerging markets dependent on Middle Eastern hydrocarbons. Despite some late-month optimism about peace talks, the Strait remained largely closed, amplifying short-term supply risks. Overall, geopolitical tensions created significant volatility, with energy markets and global asset prices vulnerable to ongoing conflicts and supply disruptions.

Since the target fund is USD-denominated, the return of this peso share class fund was significantly higher than that of its dollar share class as the Philippine peso weakened against the US dollar.
