MARKET COMMENTARY

Philippine stocks declined for the second straight month in August amid net foreign selling, subdued local earnings, sector shifts following the Konektadong Pinoy Act, and external headwinds. The PSEi closed at 6,155.57, down 1.55% MoM, with banking stocks and major conglomerates like SM and Aboitiz experiencing declines, while telco stocks faced significant pressure due to increased competition fears. Conversely, the peso strengthened, supporting property and conglomerate gains. Economic indicators remain positive, with inflation below target, GDP growth at 5.5%, and the BSP hinting at the end of its easing cycle. The government's rice import suspension and new regulations on online gambling could pose operational headwinds for certain sectors. Despite recent volatility, the outlook remains cautiously constructive, supported by a favorable macro environment, though investor sentiment needs improvement for a broader recovery.
