MARKET COMMENTARY

Global equities experienced an overall rise in December, with European stocks leading the way supported by ongoing economic expansion and low borrowing costs. Japanese equities saw modest gains despite the Bank of Japan raising interest rates to 0.75%, its highest in three decades. The US lagged due to mixed performances from mega-cap tech stocks, despite the Federal Reserve cutting rates by 25 basis points amid notable dissent among officials. Chinese stocks declined amid concerns over China's economic outlook. The VIX index dropped to 16.5, signaling market stability. Sector-wise, materials, financials, and industrials outperformed, while utilities, real estate, and consumer staples underperformed relative to the broader MSCI ACWI.

Since the target fund is USD-denominated, the return of this peso share class fund was slightly affected by a slight movement between the Philippine peso and the US dollar.
