MARKET COMMENTARY

The Philippine stock market recovered from a four-month decline, with the PSEi rising 1.56% in November, driven by local investor support despite ongoing foreign outflows and subdued macroeconomic data. Key indicators such as easing inflation, remittance growth, and rising reserves underpin a cautiously optimistic outlook, supported by government fiscal spending and potential BSP rate cuts. The reaffirmation of the country's BBB+ sovereign rating by S&P adds to positive sentiment. However, political risks and a slowdown in GDP growth maintain market fragility, dependent on political stability, currency resilience, and signs of economic acceleration. Meanwhile, the Chinese Tycoon universe underperformed, mainly due to weaknesses in consumer stocks like Universal Robina and Jollibee, impacted by earnings and weather disruptions. Top performers Converge and DigiPlus gained on regulatory clarity and strategic investments, notably DigiPlus' stake in International Entertainment Corporation.
