MARKET COMMENTARY

The Nasdaq-100 slightly outperformed the S&P 500 in March, driven by favorable Consumer Discretionary exposure and Industrials underweight positioning. Escalating Middle East conflict following "Operation Epic Fury" triggered significant market volatility, with the VIX spiking above 35. The Federal Reserve maintained interest rates amid stable employment and inflation concerns stemming from elevated oil prices, which surged due to Middle East tensions. Despite geopolitical headwinds affecting broader equity performance, AI-driven demand propelled computer hardware and storage companies, with Western Digital and Seagate Technology delivering exceptional year-to-date returns of 71.23% and 55.91%, respectively. Broadcom reported strong quarterly results, exceeding revenue and earnings estimates while projecting robust AI chip revenue growth exceeding $100 billion by 2027.

Since the target fund is USD-denominated, the return of this peso share class fund was significantly higher than that of its dollar share class as the Philippine peso weakened against the US dollar.
