MARKET COMMENTARY

In June, the Nasdaq-100 outperformed the S&P 500 with a 6.34% return, driven by strong gains in technology, notably Nvidia, which became the world's largest company by market cap. Sector performance was broad-based, with technology leading at nearly 9.55%, while healthcare lagged. Geopolitical tensions in the Middle East and the Federal Reserve's decision to hold rates steady at 4.25–4.50% amid inflation concerns influenced market sentiment. Despite uncertainties, earnings estimates for the Nasdaq-100 remain robust, with forward earnings up over 14% year-over-year. Market risks include geopolitical conflicts and sector-specific volatility, especially within technology. The upcoming earnings season and Federal Reserve meetings are key events to monitor, as investors weigh the potential for rate adjustments and economic resilience. Since the target fund is USD-denominated, the return of this peso share class fund was significantly higher than that of its dollar share class as the Philippine peso weakened against the US dollar, with a +1.1% MoM return.
