MARKET COMMENTARY

The fund delivered strong absolute and relative performance in December, with positive contributions across regions. US growth-biased strategies, such as Russell 1000 Growth, detracted, while Robeco contributed notably due to its Value/SMID bias, along with some support from AB. European active managers across styles outperformed, and low tracking error global funds surpassed their benchmarks. The newly added Global Technology fund also outperformed both the sector and the broader market. An overweight position in EM Asia ex Japan stocks contributed positively as Asian markets outperformed global indices. During the month, passive and growth exposures were slightly reduced, while positions in Healthcare ETFs and Value SMID stocks were increased.
